FALL

California Lutheran College

In the five years I have known and experienced California Lutheran College I have seen a feeling of confidence develop. I believe we know that this experience is qualitatively different. It is a humanizing experience. We have dedicated teachers who want to teach. Our numbers are small enough so that we have a chance to know one another.

For the future our master plan details how we wish to provide new facilities to add to the quality of the learning and living experience. We see the site preparation in progress for our new residence halls and maintenance building. Our cafeteria expansion program will begin soon. We who have been involved in planning realize the priority of a new Learning Resource Center. This is our first objective in the next phase, which includes a gymnasium/auditorium. We will continue to think creatively about alternatives to enclosed classrooms, thus considering more "outdoor learning alcoves" that reflect the unusual climate in which we live.

The quality of this educational experience is a function of the quality of our faculty and staff, the quality of our students, the creativity of the educational climate and the substance of the academic program.

The role and influence of the mentor is starting to shape the quality of advisement. The contract system will personalize the educational experience to reflect individual differences. A new concern for career development emphasizes the educational objective of self-fulfilling and self-actualizing careers for our graduates. Lifelong learning provides the umbrella for all that we do. Our youngest students at CLC are 2.9 years of age. We want to use our resources of faculty, students and outstanding academicians and professionals of retirement age (senior mentors) to provide for the educational needs of a society which has come to realize that commencement truly is the beginning of further enriched living and learning.

All that we do should reflect the centrality of Christ in this experience. It is lived out as we draw out our God given talents, realize the worth of persons, their ideas and their personhood. I feel blessed to be a part of this experience.

A Doll's House

The dramatic experience is one of people-kind's oldest forms of artistic expression. It has survived the centuries- and will continue to do so- because in holding "a mirror up to nature", drama satisfies two of our most human and deepest desires: to understand ourselves better and, through artistically-produced "reality", to go beyond ourselves in a heightened experience of living.

"A Community of God's People"

With understanding, help and guidance a new dimension has begun on the campus of California Lutheran College. The work and dedication of many individuals has helped to build a congregation for the entire campus community.

A great margin of improvement over the season was established by Cal Lutherans first year team. With a year of experience under their belt and with the basic aspects in building a first year team being established, the following seasons to come should prove to build soccer as a strong program at Cal Lutheran.

There have been changes at CLC in my three years here that all of us can see: Improvements of the grounds and buildings, a larger student body, balanced budgets, a new Nygreen Hall, and others. And there is movement of earth off the west end of Memorial Parkway, which portends imminent, important physical additions to the campus in new dorm facilities. All these are exciting, but there are other changes, less visible, which are also very important to me.

For one thing, we have been getting more competent, committed students at CLC, and the level of the work they do here continues to rise. We have tried to give students more responsibility for their lives in the Student Affairs area, and this is extending also into the academic area. In the future, students will have more opportunity to form their own goals and programs and will receive more individualized instruction. Student Affairs and Academic Affairs intend to work together toward the fullest development of the student as a whole person.

One of the most satisfying changes, for me, has been the growth of the student government in activity and responsibility. From a feeble new beginning three years ago, it has continued to ascend, and the promise offered by the new leadership assures me that the plane will continue on the rise.

It's characteristic of administrators to see change only in positive terms, while students and faculty may see things more in balance. I imagine some see things that have changed not for the better. Certainly, there are many things that need to change still. But that is what education is all about. It is exciting to be involved in, just because we all have the opportunity to contribute to the positive change of each other and our community of learning as a whole.

Joyous Festival of life

Each year during the Festival of the Resurrection, a week is set aside. It is a thanksgiving which not only remembers backwards but also projects forward in a shaping of our future. It is a Eucharist, dancing, stimulation, drama, and dialogue. It is a stream of occasions for saying "Yes" to God and for hearing His "Yes" to us for whom we are and what we do.

A NEW ATTITUDE

After two years on campus I see a new attitude evolving among our students and staff.

No longer is there a "navel-gazing" preoccupation with self-concerns and self-pity. Instead there is a growing feeling of confidence that Cal Lutheran is on the edge of greatness. We are approaching our fifteenth birthday (1975-76) as a Christian institution and are maturing as a quality liberal arts college. And this new attitude about ourselves as a college community is very contagious. As the song says, "the times (here at CLC) are a- changin!" This positive attitude is reflected in a celebrative lifestyle of students who are daring to become involved in changing society whenever and wherever they can.

A NEW CLIMATE

I also sense a new climate of acceptance among the 556 Lutheran congregations of the Pacific Southwest which directly supports us. These church members pray for us, send us students and support us with their gifts. Because of their positive contributions we can face the changes of the late '70's with a soring sense of confidence.

NEW POSSI- BILITIES

Finally, I see exciting new possibilities for our faculty and students. Specifically the Development Office is dedicated to raising money for increased faculty salaries and student financial aid. It is also determined to find funding for a Learning Resource Center (Library) and an Auditorium and other much-needed academic buildings.

THE CHALLENGE

In my view, Cal Lutheran has one over-arching challenge and it's this: to educate it's students in a Christian context that they can go out into the world with confidence and character and change society into a more human place in which to live and work.

SPRING

California Lutheran College

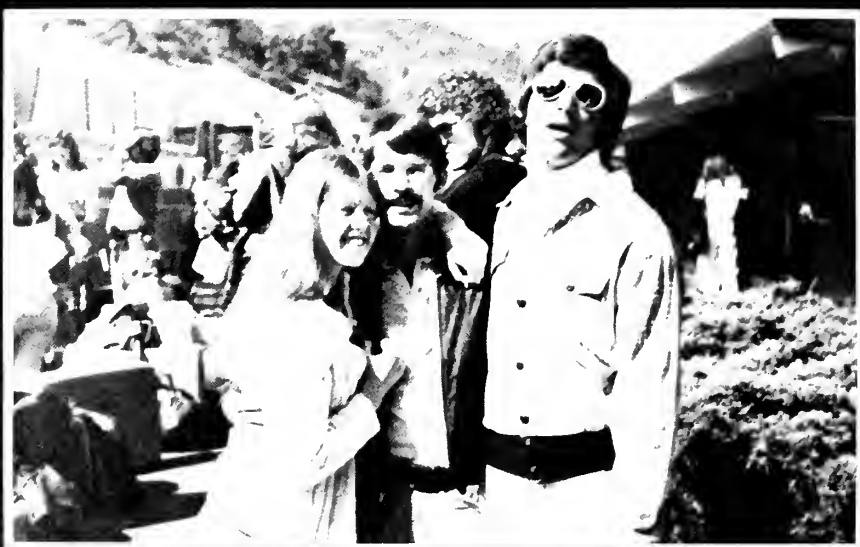

There is a sense of excitement about California Lutheran College that has a special appeal for me. I suspect it is created by the blending of many influences—the great traditions of the academy, the freedom that inheres in Christianity and the challenges which a fast-changing society presents to planners of academic programs and to teachers and students.

I know that I remain excited about the things for which the College stands and the potentialities it seeks to realize.

The 1974-75 academic year has been especially rewarding in that we have begun to develop mechanisms by which curricular change and individualized programming can be brought about more easily. The new interdisciplinary major, the granting of credit for experiential learning and the continuing emphasis upon the importance of the student-teacher relationship as one also of co-learners—all are important elements in bringing about responsible change.

The next years will also be ones of learning, planning and of change, of implementing the Life-long Learning Program. They will be exciting years for all of us!

Spurs Slave Sale

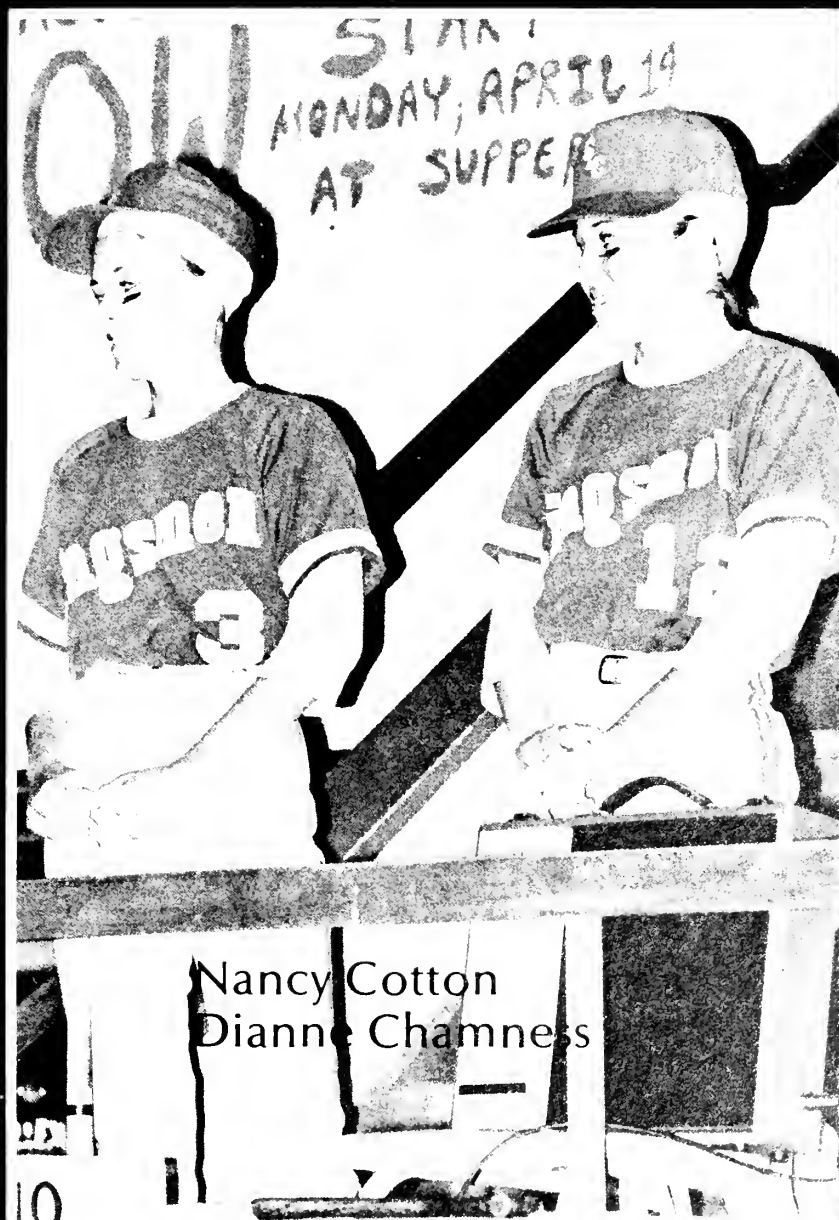

Spurs is a national women's service organization. The members are sophomores selected on the basis of interest, participation in college activities, dedication to service to the community and academic achievement.

This spring, as a charity function, the "Spurs Slave Sale" was held. The night was filled with surprises for the audience and laughs for the participants to be auctioned off. Claimed a success, the money collected was used towards one of the charitable functions that the Spurs organization is involved with.

The 1974-75 academic year closes as CLC launches the most significant new building program since its inception. 1974-75 was the year of Planning — planning for future generations of CLC students. A Master Plan was carefully formulated with assistance from all segments of the College, adopted by the Board of Regents and approved by the Thousand Oaks City Planning Commission and City Council.

Divided into two segments, Dimension 1 became possible after a successful sale of $1.8 million of tax-free bonds under the California Educational Facilities Act. Dimension 1 deals largely with student living—four new 40 student apartment-style residences, expansion of the cafeteria dining space and a new multi-purpose room. Also contained in Dimension 1 is a much needed new maintenance facility and storage space.

Ground was broken in late February for the student housing. Students in 1975-76 can look forward to an end to crowded living conditions.

Even while Dimension 1 was barely under way, planning for a significant Second Dimension was started. Academic programming for a new learning resource center progressed leading hopefully to a new library in the not too distant future.

Changes — significant changes are underway that will transform the CLC campus, yet preserve the human scale of its facilities that allow CLC students and faculty relate so well to one another.

CLC is on the move!

Keep the moments as best you can
Remember the faces,
the fun, the tears
Keep a warm ember
alive in your heart
To fan alive in
future years
Care now, for your
caring will remain
for eternity.

Taking a glance over the past year I see people who've contributed and helped to make this time successful. I extend my appreciation to all those who offered their support and kind words, but most of all I thank all those who contributed

A very special thank you to Carl Nielsen for his dedication, his warmth and his genuine concern for the 1974-1975 yearbook.

Don't you feel a change a coming
from another side of time,
breaking down the walls of silence
lifting shadows from your mind
placing back the missing mirrors
that before you couldn't find
filling mysteries of emptiness
that yesterday left behind.

And we all know it's better
yesterday has past
now let's all start the living
for the one that's going to last
yes, we all know it's better
yesterday has past
now let's all start the living
for the one that's going to last.

Don't you feel the day is coming
that will stay and remain
when your children see the answers
that you saw the same
when the clouds have all gone
there will be no more rain
and the beauty of all things
is uncovered again.

Don't you feel the day is coming
and it won't be too soon
when the people of the world
can all live in one room
when we shake off the ancient shake off the ancient chains of our tomb
we will all be born again
of the eternal womb.

And we all know it's better
yesterday has past
now let's all start the living
for the one that's going to last. (E. Farjeon)
